Lain Factory in Novi Sad
25X1A

1. Prior to World War II there was a small chinaware factory in Marka Miljana ulica, Novi Sad. With the expansion of the electric system in Yugoslavia after the war, construction of a new and much larger porcelain factory was started. Although the factory has not been completed, production has been in progress since 1949.
2. There are 300 workers employed in the factory which produces 60 percent of all chinaware in Yugoslavia. Production is for home consumption only. Previously, most of the chinaware products had been imported.

Comment: A sketch with legend of the Novi Sad porcelain factory is available upon request in the CIA Library.
